TWO SEEK LIFE OF CONSTANTINE PARIS LEARNS

GREEKS ATTEMPT KING' LIFE

Two Greeks Arrested in Milan, Italy, With Bombs in Possession.

Paris—Two Greeks carrying passports for Lucerne and in possession of bombs have been arrested at Milan, says a dispatch to the Matin. It is believed in the Italian city, the dispatch says, the men had plotted to assassinate former King Constantine of Greece.

Lucerne (Switzerland)—Former King Constantine of Greece, Queen Sophie and the other members of the royal party left here Tuesday on the homeward journey to Athens without ceremony. They were cheered at the station by a great crowd.

Not having a passport, Constantine has been given a special document by the Swiss Government to enable him to cross the frontier into Italy.

The royal party boarded the train at 12:40 o'clock and it pulled out for Venice at 1 o'clock, as scheduled, without incident. At Venice Constantine and others will board the Greek cruiser Averoff and proceed to Greece by sea. They are expected to reach Phaleron, the port of Athens, Sunday. Plans have been made for a triumphal progress of Constantine and his sons from Phaleron to Athens.

GERMANS UNITE TO MEET U.S. COMPETITION

Chilean Government Places $5,000,000 Order With Manufacturers.

Berlin—The outstanding features of the present industrial situation indicate a general improvement, among them being a decrease in unemployment and an important combination of chemical manufacturers in order to meet American competition, especially in the making of aniline dyes.

Market improvements are largely artificial, due to Christmas purchases and large foreign orders are following the slump in the mark exchange, which again permits America, Scandinavia and others to buy cheaply.

Hayti's President in an Interview Scores Minister.

Port au Prince—The President of the Republic of Hayti, Philip Dartiguenave, sat for nearly two hours in the reception room of his palace the other day and discussed with American newspaper correspondents the troubles and hopes of his people. Toward the end he became extremely emphatic and bitter in denunciation of some of the American officials with whom, as President, he must deal.

In that interview the President said the American civil administration in Hayti was "more oppressive than the military," criticized the acts of the American Minister, Bailly Blanchard, and John McIlhenny, the financial adviser, and said no serious measures had been proposed with a view to placing Hayti's finances on a truly solid basis.

STATE HIGHWAY FINANCE BOARD IS ORGANIZED

GOVERNOR NAMED AS HEAD

First Question Taken Up Is Standing of Third Bond Issue.

Sacramento — Organization of the State highway finance board, created by the ninth amendment at the November election, was effected yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the members by the selection of Governor William D. Stephens as chairman, State Treasurer Friend W. Richardson, vice-chairman, and Chairman of the State Highway Commission N. K. Darlington, secretary.

To clear up all matters in connection with the disposition of the bonds a friendly suit will at once be brought before the Supreme Court. In the meantime the State Treasurer will prepare the bonds in readiness for sale as soon as a decision is rendered.

R. W. Harrison, Deputy Attorney-General, was in attendance and gave advice to the board upon legal matters pertaining to what were considered "sold and unsold bonds."

Of the original 40,000 third highway issue of bonds, Treasurer Richardson said that 12,000 were sold to the State of California upon a bid of the State Board of Control and of these, 4122 bonds have been paid for and resold by the State Board of Control. The remaining 1678 bonds are still in the possession of the State Treasurer.

MAN'S SLAYERS THROW VICTIM INTO BONFIRE

Partly Cremated Body Found in S. P. Cattle Corral Near Gilroy.

San Jose—The body of a middle-aged man was found lying over a half-burned fire of railroad ties in the Southern Pacific cattle corral at Gilroy, twenty-five miles southeast of here today. Marks on the body indicated that the man was murdered before being thrown into the fire.

Portions of the body were scorched and a card found in a half-burned pocketbook nearby bore the name "A. Helmeriehe," and the address "335 West Arbor Vieda street, Inglewood, Cal."

There were a number of playing cards scattered around the scene. The authorities are of the belief that the man was playing cards with railroad trespassers and was murdered as a result of a quarrel over the game. He is said to have come to Gilroy two months ago to accept work as a farm hand, and to have been discharged a week ago.

Attorney's Illness Causes Delay in 'Hotaling Case'

San Rafael—The famous Hotaling trial for title to the "Sleepy Hollow" ranch, which was to have come up for argument in the Superior Court here Tuesday, has been postponed because of the illness of Attorney Robert Duncan, who was representing Mrs. Ella K. Hotaling on the defense. Duncan was stricken by neuritis Monday, and it is doubtful whether he will be able to resume his place in the trial, in which case William H. Metson, one of the attorneys who has been representing Richard M. Hotaling, on the defense, will probably act also for Mrs. Ella K. Hotaling. The remaining four attorneys for the defense are taking advantage of the time to reorganize their broken ranks for the final clash with Gavin McNab and Nat Schmulowitz, who are representing the plaintiffs, Mrs. Lavina J. Hotaling and her other son, Fred Hotaling.

Fresno Boy Flees From Abductor—Man Is Captured.

Fresno—William Rowell, 14, son of Milo L. Rowell of Fresno, and nephew of Chester H. Rowell, escaped from a lone kidnaper, who had taken him Friday to Pinehurst, near General Grant Park, Sunday, telephoned to his parents and was returned to his home in Fresno. A posse organized by Sheriff W. F. Jones, returned Sunday night with I. M. Stalker, who the officers said had confessed to taking the boy from his home.

Oppenheim Offers to Quit if Charges Against Him Are Proven True.

San Francisco—Resignation of Theodore Roche, president of the Police Commission, recall of Police Judges Morris Oppenheim and John J. Sullivan, and of Supervisor John D. Hynes, and consideration of the actions of certain members of the Board of Supervisors in connection with their refusal to place on the ballot at the recent election a proposal for a charter amendment looking to improvement in Police Court conditions, are under consideration by the Civic League of Improvement Clubs and Asso...

The Tree of Love

I
Am
The Tree
Of Love
I am the light
That Christmas-tide
Brings. I am ever green
My limbs are yearning to Bear the burden of gifts of
Noel. I live in the high, open
Spaces where God smiles brightest on the world, where his light
Keeps the memory of Christ's birth
Refreshed. Years ago men fought and
Knew no time to think of the Gentle
One who spoke of Love. And then one
Night a star beamed in the east and filled
Me with a sweet grace. My soul quivered,
And I was born again. And now I come
With the Christmas time to remind you of Love—Love, that fades, but lives again. I am
But a dream unless you know me. I wish
To ache under the burden of love gifts.
Yes, I am ever green; I live forever, but
You do not know me always. I ask
You to remember the little ones
Whom Love has passed when some
Forget me. I pray the light that
Never dies shall flame out again
In your heart. For this I live.
For this I ask. I wish
To live and serve.
I am
Love
Hope
Life
I am the Tree of Love.

According to Hare's story, upon arrival in Tahiti he invested his capital in a plant that made fertilizer out of non-edible fish. This enterprise succeeded, and with his earnings from this business and a few original ideas he speedily became interested in numerous enterprises, among them being the Greater Tahitian Sugar Plantations, the Tahiti Brewery and the Tahitian Ice Company.

EMMA G. MERRILL

Once more the the people of Campbell have been called to do honor to the memory of one of the old and highly respected residents, who was called to her reward Saturday morning.

Inasmuch as Mrs. A. P. Merrill has been seriously ill a few weeks and had been sinking for several days her death was not unexpected and altho relatives and friends mourn their loss, no one would wish to recall her from her heavenly home to continue suffering here.

Emma G. Merrill was a native of West Virginia, born at Wheeling, Dec. 14, 1846. Receiving her education in the east, at the age of nineteen she went to St. Paul, Minn., where she was an instructor in a young ladies' seminary. She was married on December 30, 1867, to Alexander P. Merrill, with whom she had enjoyed over fifty years of wedded life, altho they were unable to hold any public reception on their golden anniversary.

Three of their four children were present during Mrs. Merrill's final illness and ministered at her bedside, Walter A. Merrill who recently came from St. Paul and is living in Los Angeles, Mrs. Sarah Craig, of Conrad, Montana, and Edward C. Merrill of Campbell. The older daughter, Mrs. Alice Paschall of West Grove, Pa., spent the past year here, returning east in September. There are also nine grandchildren and one great grandchild.

For twenty-six years Mr. and Mrs. Merrill have made their home in Campbell and are among its best citizens, having held an honored place in the membership of the Congregational church, and belonging to the E. O. C. Ord Relief Corps of Los Gatos.

The funeral rites were held from the home on Campbell ave. Monday afternoon, Rev. W. E. Eckles offciating, because of the illness of Rev. H. L. Preston. Rev. Hayward, a friend of many years' standing, offered the prayer and Miss Baker and Miss Phillips of Los Gatos sang "Some Sweet Day Bye and Bye," and a solo "Face to Face."

The pallbearers were Messrs. W. T. Alexander, H. V. Archibald, J. E. Lawrence, F. S. Newcomb, A. B. Townsend and A. F. Hills, interment being at Los Gatos cemetery.

A. P. Merrill, his son, Walter, and Mrs. Craig left Wednesday morning for Los Angeles, where Mr. Merrill will make his home for the present.

ONE OF THE MOST SHOCKING pieces of violence of mob rule was exhibited at Santa Rosa when a party of supposedly law-abiding citizens took the responsibility into their own hands and perpetrated the dastardly job of hanging three gangsters. Without question, these three prisioners were guilty of most fiendish and hellish acts of violence, and were deserving of a just punishment, but this does not excuse men who enact another crime. For such they did. The men who took part in that raid and hanging may never even be hunted, but they are and always will be criminals in the sight of God and the laws of the State. It is a serious matter for even the State to take a human life officially, and much more serious for a group of unauthorized citizens to assume such responsibility. It is no less than murder.

ONE OF THE MOST AGGRAVATING acts of discourtesy and illmanners is that indulged in occasionally by some, and continually by others, at concerts. At a recent musical performance several parties kept up a constant chatter during the instrumental numbers, which was not only annoying to those who appreciate hearing good music, but was decidedly discourteous to the players. As a community, Campbell thoroughly enjoys good music, and is ever encouraging organizations to promote a greater love of music. Just a bit of coartesy and self control, on the part of some, will aid immeasurably in the encouragement af musical talent.

Extra Special:

For the Children—that old fashioned broken mixed candy at low cost. It is good—just as attractive to the taste and the eye as it used to be—nothing gone but a big chunk of the price—down to almost before-the-war figures—20c a pound.

Extra large Oranges, the sort that pack only 100 to a box, and were almost too high to think of only a few weeks ago, down to 60c a dozen. They are highly colored, and will decorate the Christmas table beautifully.

Christmas wouldn't be complete without popcorn, plenty of it, enough so there'll be no worry about running out. A big bagfull can be afforded at 10c a pound.

Fifteen cents a pound for raw Peanuts, shelled, seems very, very low. But the low cost is not because of low quality. Peanuts have become plentiful in the market; and since they are so nutritious, more nourishing pound for pound than meat, and decidedly palatable besides, they should be used regularly. Roast them in your own oven—it's economy. Customer who tried them says, "My, they're fine!"

Lastly, use Blaine's Steel-Cut Coffee.

P T A RECEPTION

The High School P. T. A. made its public deput Wednesday evening when the members were hosts to the parents, teachers and interested friends of the C. U. H. S.

The downstairs hall of the I. O. O. F. building had been attractively decorated with potted plants, bowls of flowers and small tables. A reception committee greeted the guests and saw that the people made the acquaintance of each other. The musical program as announced last week was given, all of the numbers of which were greatly enjoyed. Messrs. Hamamicek and Kalas, with Mrs. Carboni at the piano, met with their usual hearty encores and the friends seemed glad to hear the men's glee club again. Miss Kalas and Mr. Carboni's solos were very pleasing and the readings by Mrs. H. C. Smith produced a hearty laugh. The talk given by Mrs. Harry Ewing, state president of the P. T. A., in which she explained the object of the organizations, and made very clear the responsibility of parents for the social activities of high school boys and girls, and the need for reformation in their dress and expenditures, met with the hearty approval of all those who were heard to express their opinions. She also urged the necessity of sympathetic interest in young people's confidences, and of keeping young and playing with them. Mrs. Chas. Flickinger, sixth district president, was also in attendance.

The refreshment committee had arranged the dining room with self-help tables and groups of varying numbers were soon busily conversing over the coffee cups and dainty cakes.

The membership committee were very much "on the job" and a long list of names of both men and women was added to the roster before the close of the evening.

Among the ambitious youngsters to travel the hot sands of the Mystic Shrine at San Francisco last evening were: Masters John Colpits Ainsley, Ralston Allison, Roy Gatchtll Archibald and Lionel Tracy Lenox. First Harvard-Yale Boat Race.

The annual Harvard-Yale boat race had its beginning in the desire of a young American railroad to advertise itself. A traffic manager conceived the idea that if Lake Winnipesaukee, on the line of the then Concord & Montreal railroad, were selected for a boat race between the two colleges, the event would advertise the railroad and be well worth encouraging, says Christian Science Monitor. Meeting the Yale oarsmen one day on the train, he suggested the race, and as a result Yale issued a challenge to Harvard, which Harvard accepted. The railroad company paid the expenses of the crews, and Harvard won the prize, a pair of black walnut sculls, more ornamental than useful, but serving to set in motion what has become a famous intercollegiate sport.

Best Christmas for a Boy

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

(©, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

AS ONE boy to another—for I have never gotten over being one, although I am getting as gray as a billy-goat around the ears—I want to give it as my opinion that a Christmas anywhere but in the country is no Christmas at all!

A city Christmas is a make-believe, a hollow mockery, a false alarm, an imitation. I have tried both kinds, and so I know. A city Christmas has all the tin and tinsel, and that is all. By the time you get as old and feel as young as I am, you find most of the plate worn off.

Honestly, boys (and girls), I don't think Santa Claus himself ever feels very much at home except on a rural route! He has a mighty poor job in a big town, with flues instead of chimneys, and everything. And it is hard to see where he gets room to turn a sleigh and eight reindeer around, tiny reindeer though they may be. He'll be pretty certain to bump into a hydrant or tip over on a curb.

And with twenty families all using one flue (and, what is worse, a soft coal flue at that) how in the world is the most experienced Santa going to find which is Brown's and which is Smith's, and where the Greens live? Even if he dared rap and ask (which no Santa Claus is ever supposed to do) nobody could tell him. For perhaps the Browns and the Smiths have never "met," and the Greens might live across the hall for a month before anybody thought to inquire their name.

For that is one thing you don't get much of in the city—neighbors. Sometimes when the woman across the road keeps running in just when your mother is canning, or baking, or treating a shirt-bosom kindly but firmly with a flat-iron, your mother may almost wish that they weren't quite so plentiful in the country—but she wouldn't. She would miss them, just the same as you would miss having the same boys to play with year after year.

For in the city you are always getting a fresh lot of playmates—and sometimes they are a mighty fresh lot, too. Of course there are some good kids, also; but it always seems that just when you get to liking some fellow up the street or across the alley, the landlord boosts the rent and his folks have to move, and you never see him again. He may move only from one side of the city to the other, but it might as well be to another state. It is five or ten or twenty miles—miles of houses, no, miles of flats, and streetcar tracks, and railroads, and factories—and you never see him again or any of his folks.

The boys you know this Christmas probably won't be around at all next Christmas, if you live in the city. That is a funny thing about city folks: they are always going somewhere and never getting anywhere. Why, even if the landlord didn't raise the rent October 1 or May 1 or whenever the lease expires, they might move anyway! People who live in flats instead of homes are always looking for something better and getting something worse. They have the most wonderful collection of rent receipts, but not a foot of ground, not a roof or rafter, they can call their own.

Now, I don't know what you think, but I think that every family ought to have a house of its own, a house it lives in year after year. That is, of course, unless the father has some sort of job that makes it necessary for him to move to some other town every other year or so. But it is a great thing to live in a home, not just a house, and that is about the best place, and the only place, to have a Christmas, a real, sure-enough, honest-to-goodness Christmas.

Most of you boys who live on the farm and in the small town have that kind of home, and I wonder if you know how lucky you are? Wouldn't you hate to wake up Christmas morning and look at the ceiling and realize that someone else owned it, and then get up and go out in the front yard and realize that someone else owned that, too—why, you'd get so after awhile that, everything you saw, you would wonder who owned it!

I tell you, boys, it's a great satisfaction to have a back yard and to know it's yours, and that you can invite people into it, or invite people to stay out of it, just as you please. Why, that is what brought the Pilgrim Fathers to America—they wanted a spot they could call their own. I don't say that it was exactly a back yard they wanted, but what they wanted was some place they could play ball and no landlord of a king could come along and tell them to stop because they might break some of the royal windows. You know old King George did come along and try to make them stop—and you know what happened to the royal windows. Zam!

And then there is this matter of snow. You know some people don't think it is much of a Christmas without snow. Now, I know quite a lot about snow because I've been acquainted with a lot of it. I have swum through it up in the Hudson Bay country and I've wallowed around in it sometime on top of the Rocky mountains. And I want to tell you that there is a great difference in snow—that is, there is a great difference between country snow and city snow.

We may not have snow this Christmas, but we'll just suppose we do. Isn't a good, old lively snowstorm great? Perhaps it is one of these lazy snowstorms, with the big, white flakes just floating down like feathers and slowly turning the roads and roofs to white, like a coat of good white paint. Maybe there will be enough of it to make good coasting on the hills and good sleighing on the roads.

And, by the way, do you know there are boys in the big cities who have never seen a sleigh? Because a sleigh is getting to be a scarce article in the cities. You see, as soon as a little snow comes the street-cleaning department gets busy and sweeps it up, before it gets a chance to melt into slush.

In the country the winter wheat needs it, and the ground takes care of it. But in the city it just means slop and slush. So they sweep it up and carry it away and uncover the ugly pavement as soon as they can.

But they let you keep your snow in the country. When a warm wind comes along it will pack fine, and you can have your snow-men, and your snow forts, and your snowball battles. (Only please don't use your artillery on older folks, or girls, or me.)

Or perhaps this snowstorm is one of the blizzardy kind, with the wind zipping around the house and piling

Snowballs Through Royal Windows.

the snow up in the corners—why that kind of snow doesn't seem to come down at all, but just goes slanting by until it runs up against something it can't pass.

I remember being on a night train one time; and when we woke up in the morning, and the train was running over the smooth prairies, a little girl from a big city in western Pennsylvania (I won't tell you what city it was but maybe you can guess) exclaimed as she looked out of the window:

"Look, Mamma! The snow out here is white!"

I don't need to say much about the Christmas dinner. But if you have your Christmas dinner in the country, the turkey perhaps is one your folks raised, or that was raised in the neighborhood—anyhow, it is pretty likely to be a native, and not a resident of a cold storage plant somewhere. Or maybe you'll have a goose or a brace of chickens. Anyway, you'll know their pedigree, and that they're fresh and good.

And it will be the same way all down the line—vegetables, and pies, and everything. And cooked!—cooked to a turn—just long enough—just short enough—just right.

And you will more than likely have one thing that they won't have at the Christmas dinner in the city, because you know the cost of living just now is mighty high, in town especially, for both rich and poor. So you will have one thing that the city boy probably will not have—

Enough!

So I could go on and show you a dozen other ways in which a Christmas in the country puts it all over a Christmas in the city, but I am going to mention just one thing more: the Christmas tree.

Of course they have Christmas trees in the city. In New York trainloads of them come down every season from the Adirondacks, and in Chicago boatloads come from Michigan's upper peninsula. You can buy them for fifty cents or a dollar, and they make very good Christmas trees indeed.

I don't know what you think about this either—but I have always thought that things I did myself and for myself were just twice the fun of things I bought myself or hired myself. And I think that especially about a Christmas tree. If you are lucky enough to be able to go out and pick your own tree, and chop it down, and bring it in—well, that's what I call a real Christmas tree!

Because that is really and truly your Christmas tree. You selected it with your own eye and chopped it down with your own axe and brought it home with your own muscle. The Christmas tree—that is your job:

Bringing in the Tree

Father gets the turkey,
Mother makes the pie—
Each one has a Christmas job
To do, and so have I
Sister strings the popcorn
To decorate—but, gee!
I have got the biggest job—
Bringing in the tree!

Turkey is important,
Pie and such are great,
Popcorn strings you have to have
When you decorate.
But I guess a Christmas
Christmas wouldn't be
If you didn't have a boy
Bringing in the tree!
